STRANGE AFFINITIES:

John Mattson & Danville Chadbourne

November 7 - December 5, 2013

For years, painter John Mattson and sculptor Danville Chadbourne have engaged in a vibrant intellectual dialogue based on an oddly sympathetic color sense, a shared interest in the interaction of geometric and organic forms, a mutual commitment to formal concerns, and an overriding fascination with the irony, paradox, and fundamental philosophical quandaries of human existence. The strange affinities found in these works, and the artists themselves, emerge from the dialogue between them.
